[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 19.—In a general attack on all dam and water power sites bills, Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, republican, today had a bill stricken from the calendar through objections. These included the omnibus water power site bill on which a bitter fight had been expected.

Conferees on the naval appropriation bill agreed today to provide for one battleship at a cost of not more than 15 million dollars. An appropriation of $2,575,000 is to be available for the beginning of the work.

No agreement was reached as to size, dimensions or armament. The naval bill in other respects was adopted as approved by the previous conference and now is acceptable to the house and senate.

At the White House today a telegram was received from a Toledo, Ohio editor asking if U. G. Denman, U. S. attorney at Cleveland has been asked to resign because of alleged political activity in behalf of the progressive party in Ohio.

Carmi A. Thompson, secretary to President Taft wired in reply, "no truth in statement U. G. Denman is to leave position. On the contrary his record in department is entirely satisfactory."

An attempt to secure consideration of the Newlands resolution for a joint congressional committee to confer with President Taft on tariff legislation failed today in the senate. Senator Smoot objected.

Republican leader Mann chided the officers of the house today because the flag behind speaker's chair has only 48 stars instead of 48. Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico not being represented.

The naval bill as agreed to also provides for eight submarines. During negotiations between the house and senate that number was once cut to four. The original number will now be provided. This year's building program also will include six torpedo boats, two colliers and one machine ship. It was agreed that the new battleship would not be a supreme dreadnaught but a vessel of standard size.

President Taft today began the task of convincing members of the house and senate that the Panama canal bill should contain some feature to assure other nations that the United States did not intend to violate the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

It was said the President believes the Panama canal bill might have the effect of nullifying the Hay-Pauncefote treaty if not in harmony with it. In construing the Chinese exclusion law several years ago the supreme court held that the law superseded the treaty with China.

The President discussed the Panama bill with the cabinet at luncheon in the White House. Every member in town was present and further conferences will be held before the regular cabinet session tomorrow morning.

After a spirited debate the senate repassed the vetoed legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill still carrying a provision for the abolishment of the commerce court. A majority of the appropriation committee reported the bill with provision for the retention of the court and when this was eliminated Mr. Taft's friends predicted that the bill would be vetoed.

Chinango has been attacked by the rebels and an attack upon Corinto, the principle city on the Pacific coast side is feared. Telegraphic communication between Managua and Corinto is interrupted.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Conditions in Mexico were related to the senate today by Senator Fall of New Mexico, who arose to a question of personal privilege to declare "absurd and ridiculous" a statement reporting to have come from President Madero to the effect that Mr. Fall had caused the failure of peace negotiations between the Mexican government and General Orozco.

Senator Fall denied he ever had any connection with Orozco regarding the peace negotiations. Conditions in Mexico could not last much longer, he said. Senator Culbertson of Texas had read a telegram from Secretary Knox, dated July 30, saying conditions in Mexico were growing better.

"I have before me information at the present time," replied Mr. Fall, "that the statements are unfounded. My sources of information are superior to those of the state department but I cannot divulge the names of the parties."

Senator Fall favored recognition by the United States of the insurgents in Mexico, but was opposed by Senator Culbertson.

AUTHORITIES CHASE
AN ITALIAN SUSPECT*Sheriff Ransom and Chief of Police
Appley Spent Sunday Searching For West All's Mur-derer.

Acting on a report received from persons residing in Johnston that an Italian conducting himself suspiciously had been seen in that locality, Chief of Police Appley and Sheriff E. H. Ransom spent yesterday in a futile search for the man who was thought to be one of the men accused of the murderous attack on Alex. Watzlavik of Waukesha and Patrolman Korn of West Allis last Wednesday night.

A telephone message to Chief Appley was received about ten o'clock Sunday morning. The informant stated that the man had been seen by several farmers who noticed that he tried to read sign boards and was acting suspiciously. One resident, who took a Waukesha paper and had a description of the men suspected in the recent assault was of the opinion that this man was the one who did the shooting.

Chief Appley communicated with Sheriff Ransom and they decided to secure an automobile and investigate. They spent the remainder of the morning questioning Johnston farmers who had seen the man in an endeavor to locate him. They returned to Janesville at noon and in the afternoon returned to continue the chase.

The man had called at the store at Johnston early Sunday morning and after some difficulty in making himself understood purchased a bar of soap. He made his departure hastily. The local authorities failed to find any trace of him although they saw what they supposed was his foot prints in the soft mud of several cross roads.

The descriptions given by the persons who had seen the man proved too vague to determine whether or not he was the man who is being sought.

In the chase Sunday afternoon a report of a suspect at Avalon lead to a ride to that part of the county. The man in question proved to be a harmless Armenian from Chicago, who was traveling in the interests of a fanatical religious sect.

Sheriff Ransom received a telephone call from Dr. Dyke at Johnston this afternoon to the effect that two Italians had been seen in the woods near the Taylor farm. The sheriff secured an automobile and left for the place shortly after three o'clock to make an investigation.

FOUGHT GUERRIERE
JUST CENTURY AGO*Constitution, Better Known as "Old
Ironides" Decorated in Honor Of Anniversary.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 19.—Men, women and children, including scores of summer tourists from the South and West, visited the Charlestown navy yard today to gaze reverently at the old frigate Constitution on the occasion of the one hundredth anniversary of her famous victory over the Guerriere. The famous ship, long known to history as "Old Ironides," was decorated from stem to stern in honor of the anniversary.

The battle between the Constitution and the Guerriere was one of the most notable actions in the naval history of the United States. The Constitution, under the command of Captain Hull, had left Boston late in July and after cruising about several weeks fell in with the Guerriere on August 13, 1812. The action commenced late in the afternoon. After several hours of terrific fighting, with the vessels linked so closely that the battle developed into a hand to hand conflict, Captain Dacres of the Guerriere struck his colors. The surrender of the British did not occur, however, until after their vessel had been literally shot to pieces and her decks covered with the dead and dying.

Great was the excitement in Boston when the Constitution arrived with her prisoners a few days later. The victory had come at a time when the public mind required cheering. The British had scored a succession of land victories, along the Canadian frontier and for weeks the papers had been unable to record any success for the American arms.

SITUATION IN CAR

men Would Strike or Not.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Developments in the street car controversy in Chicago reached an acute stage today. Two important conferences are scheduled to be held which may determine whether the men will strike.

It was reported the sentiment of the elevated employees who are voting on a proposition to strike is generally in favor of a strike but the result of balloting probably will not be made known until tonight. The men employed on the surface lines already have overwhelmingly voted to strike. In a statement issued early today President Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway employees declared he had been working for five weeks to procure and agreement between employees of the surface and elevated lines of the companies.

"The companies simply have played with our committees," said he. "They have offered practically no concessions."

The surface lines committee today called on Mayor Harrison. Danger of a strike was declared to be remote by L. A. Busby, president of the Chicago city railway company. He predicted a new working agreement will be entered into without resort to radical action.

FLORIDA EVERGLADES
EXAMINATION REPORT
IS MADE PUBLIC NOW*House Receives Report That Has Been Subject of Much Discussion for Many Months.

Washington, Aug. 19.—The investigation of the Department of Agriculture's connection with the Florida Everglades drainage project ended today when the House of Representatives' committee on expenditures in the Department of Agriculture submitted to the House findings in majority and minority reports of its members.

The conduct of Assistant Secretary Hays of the Agriculture Department, whose relations with former drainage engineer J. O. Wright were the subject of special attention by the committee, was declared in a majority report presented by Chairman Madsen, democrat, to have been not in harmony with the proper standards of official propriety if not of official rectitude. The minority report made by Representative Sloan, of Nebraska, Republican, asserted on the other hand that the "unstable" majority conclusions were "more of a charge against the mental capacity and honesty of the committee members" than against Assistant Secretary Hays.

The majority report was signed by Chairman Madsen and Representative Flood, of Arkansas, and Doughton of North Carolina, Democrats. The minority report was signed by Representative Sloan, of Nebraska, who stated that Representatives Higgins of Connecticut, and Madden of Illinois, approved it. All are Republicans. Many features of the Agriculture Department's work in connection with the Everglades were attacked by the Democratic report, which arraigned the Department as having been "on familiar terms with real estate promoters and speculators."

No real criticisms of Secretary Wilson were contained in the majority report, the burden of criticism being laid on Secretary Hays. The minority report, on the other hand, acquitted the latter of the charges that he "despised all restraint and attempted to capitalize his official position and draw quick dividend from official opportunity."

The Everglades investigation arose through the charges that certain reports prepared by government engineers had been withheld from publication, with the inference that such action was in the interest of land dealers. C. G. Elliot, chief of drainage and Assistant Engineer Moorehouse, who were brought into the controversy, were found by the committee to have made an arrangement in connection with North Carolina swamp lands that was in violation of the law, but inasmuch as there was no profit involved in it the committee declared that the men had been too severely disciplined by Agriculture Department officials.

Assistant Secretary Hays' connection with the matter arose through a private arrangement he made with J. O. Wright, former drainage engineer, for the handling of some drained land in North Carolina which did not belong to the Government.

The majority report cited Wright's admissions of his familiarity with real estate promoters and of accepting development company stock and fees while engaged officially in making surveys to reclaim land. It is declared that while thus engaged as a paid salesman and an interested purchaser he appeared before the North Carolina legislature as an official of the Department of Agriculture ostensibly to advise in the framing of drainage legislation.

He later boasted, the report said, of securing the passage of a special statute there under which he was enabled to close a deal. His transactions were denounced by the majority as repugnant to a high sense of honor and integrity, which would justify dismissal if he were still in the Government service. The report added that his transactions were not brought to the knowledge of his superiors of the drainage division.

The majority report cited testimony regarding frequent conferences of Assistant Secretary Hays with Engineer Wright, who has since become state drainage engineer of Florida, concerning the purchase and sale at a profit of the bed of Lake Matanzas, N. C. Mr. Wright, the majority declared, did not seem to realize the impropriety of his own conduct. In view of his confidential relations with Mr. Hays the majority "found it difficult to escape the conviction that Mr. Hays was in full possession of the facts relative to Wright's deals and transactions when they were being negotiated" and that Hays should have condemned them rather than to have encouraged them.

There was no evidence, however, that Mr. Hays actually received any money profits out of any of these transactions. Mr. Hays' office, said the majority, should be free from any connection with "speculative enterprises and get-rich-quick schemes."

SCHEPPS HAS TOLD HIS STORY OF THE
CRIME TO WHITMAN*Met By District Attorney at Albany and Relates Story of Shooting of the Gambler Rosenthal.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Aug. 19.—Sam Schepps came back to Broadway today with a statement corroborating the confession of "Bald Jack" Rose, charging Police Lieut. Becker with instigating the murder of the gambler Herman Rosenthal.

For two hours Schepps and District Attorney Whitman were in conference in a Pullman station and when the train reached New York, Mr. Whitman said: "Schepps has done all that we expected of him."

"He has corroborated the most important parts of Jack Rose's confession. You must not ask me for details."

Opposing interests of the district attorney's office and the police again were in evidence when Schepps arrived. Two detectives from headquarters, saying they were acting under orders, attempted to seize the little man before he left the train, but Mr. Whitman was quick to announce that his office was in command and the detectives did not get their man.

Instead, he was taken to the west side police court by Detective Thomas of the district attorney's staff, and there held a prisoner on a technical charge of vagrancy as a material witness along with Rose, Vallon and Webber.

Schepps himself refused to say a word about his conference with Mr. Whitman. To all inquiries he gave grinning responses that they had "just a sociable chat." As for fear of the "system's vengeance" he grinned again and tilted back his straw hat as indicative of his unconcern.

Of the authorities Mr. Whitman alone knows what part Schepps played in the Rosenthal affair. To all others, including Assistant District Attorney Rubin, who accompanied him from Hot Springs, Schepps turned a deaf ear.

"Say," he burst out when urged to tell of his underworld association. Do you think I'm going to squeal on a pal?"

News that Sam Schepps the much sought witness in the Rosenthal case was here and that his testimony has been taken on the train by District Attorney Whitman who joined the party at Albany, has given rise to the hope that missing links in the story which "Bald Jack Rose" told implicating Lieut. Police Chas. Becker in the murder of Herman Rosenthal would be supplied.

Rose has repeatedly stated that if Schepps would tell the truth, his story would be corroborated. Interest was unusual in police circles today occasioned by the fact of the report that for several months prior to the shooting of Rosenthal, officers have been watched by representatives of the state's attorney.

The big grafters have been constantly shadowed for four months. The members of the district attorney staff shooting simply hurried matters. From it was learned that a well known civilian and two, possibly four police inspectors have been sharing the spotlight.

District Attorney Whitman has obtained information that a "collector" for one man high in police circles had no less than $75,000 for his commission on collections in the last seven months.

The investigation of the police department started, it was reported when Lieut. Becker attempted to get $150 from a private poker club. His demand was turned down and one member of the club informed district Attorney Whitman of the affair. The grand jury will meet tomorrow when it is expected Sam Schepps will be able to testify.

Bernard Sandler, counsel for Sam Schepps issued this statement on arriving in New York:

"Sam Schepps is not a criminal. He has come across the continent on my advice as counsel to render whatever aid he can to the district attorney of New York in prosecuting the murderers of Herman Rosenthal."

Lieut. Becker made a brief appearance in the court of general session today to plead to the indictment charging murder in the first degree. At the request of counsel the pleading was adjourned until Wednesday.

Schepps Guarded.

Albany, New York, Aug. 19.—Sam Schepps the much desired witness in the Rosenthal murder case in custody of New York officials left here at 6:50 for New York. District Attorney Whitman joined the party here early today. The party is due to arrive in New York at 10:30.

BOY SETS FIRE TO BIG GASOLINE TANK

Youngster Touches Match To Wooden Box Which Contained 100 Gallon Gasoline Receptacle.

A small boy, a match and a large tank of gasoline proved a dangerous combination and a serious explosion was narrowly averted at the Reesling Brothers' large gasoline tank is due yesterday afternoon. The Reesling Brothers' large gasoline tank is located in a shed near their store. A small boy whose name is Johnston, it was said, was playing about the place and with mischievous intent poured the contents of a five-gallon can of gasoline on the wooden box which surrounded the big 100 gallon tank. A match which was touched to the box started a brisk blaze and had it not been for the timely arrival of neighbors an explosion and serious fire would have resulted. As it was the fact that the boards of the protecting box were well matched preventing fire from getting inside, gave time to put out the flames.

A fire alarm was turned in about 3:45 and the department responded but the flames had been extinguished when they arrived. The youngster had made his escape and was nowhere in sight when the fire was discovered.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Brookville, Ont., Aug. 19.—A monument in honor of the memory of General Sir Isaac Brock, who was in command of the Canadian forces against the Americans in the war of 1812, was unveiled in this city today, with interesting and modest ceremonies.

The local chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, to whose efforts the erection of the monument is due, was in charge of the ceremonies. The principal address was delivered by Col. Samuel Hughes, the Canadian minister of militia and defence.

The date for the unveiling of the memorial was appropriately chosen, since it will be just one hundred years tomorrow since the surrender of Detroit, with which event the name of General Brock is most closely associated in American history.

General Brock was born on the island of Guernsey in 1769 and had had a brilliant military career in the British service before he was sent to Canada. Nearly two years before the outbreak of the war between Great Britain and the United States he realized that the conflict could not be averted, and he began to put the province in a condition to meet hostilities. As soon as war was declared he advanced upon Detroit.

General Hull, the American commander, had retired to Detroit after a brief attempt at an invasion of Canada. The war department had made no adequate provision for the defence of Detroit, and upon the appearance of General Brock the American commander surrendered his entire army, with all its cannon, arms and stores.

With the surrender of Detroit the whole of Michigan fell into the hands of the British.

General Brock was made a knight of the Bath for his victory at Detroit, but he survived his honors less than two months. An American force of 6000 gathered on the Niagara frontier after the fall of Detroit, and there General Brock gave battle near the middle of October. He was pierced by three balls while leading his troops, and died where he fell. An imposing memorial column, surmounted by a statue of the general, marks the place of his death on Queenstown heights.

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PAYSON TERNHUNE

SITTING BULL.

A Sioux youth, knife in hand, leaped astride the fallen body of a buffalo bull he had just shot. The supposedly dead bison staggered to its feet and set off at a lumbering gallop; the young Sioux—Tatanka-Yo-Tanka—still sitting on its shoulders. At last, with his knife, the Indian managed to slay his strange mount. From this adventure he is said to have won the nickname of "Sitting Bull."

Sitting Bull was a "medicine man," as well as a chief. Medicine men were not only doctors, but were also supposed to be in close communion with the Great Spirit and to be endowed with supernatural powers. By hymns, by the rattling of drums, etc., they stirred their people to action; by hypnotism, "magic spells" and pretended messages from the Great Spirit they commanded obedience and veneration.

Sitting Bull belonged to the Onopapa tribe of the Sioux nation. He was born at Willow Creek, Dakota, in 1837. Of a little more than medium height, he was powerfully built, was pallid and pockmarked of face, and—unusual among Indians—had rather light brown hair. From this peculiarity arose the rumor that he was a renegade West Point cadet.

As a young man, Sitting Bull enjoyed an unsavory record as a murderer, horse thief and frontier raider. In 1862 he led the Sioux in a series of massacres on the settlers of Minnesota and Iowa.

The rush of gold seekers to the Black Hills began. There was an instant clash between the miners and the local Sioux. The latter, finding themselves ousted from their lands, rallied to Sitting Bull's standard and went on the warpath. They plundered, burned and killed; their bloody path lying through huge districts of Wyoming and Montana. The government ordered out troops under Gens. Terry and Crook to drive them back to their reservation. Instead of returning home, Sitting Bull with about 4,000 warriors retreated toward the Big Horn mountains. With the Sioux were "hostile" Indians from other tribes—Cheyennes, Bannocks, etc. They had stolen many cattle and horses and had become drunk with the love of freedom and bloodshed. They were in no mood to surrender. General Custer and Major Reno were sent to find where the Sioux army was hiding. On the morning of June 20, 1876, they discovered Sitting Bull's camp on the Little Big Horn river. Custer, thanks to a clever ruse of the medicine man, was quite deceived as to the number of his foes. Instead of withdrawing or waiting for reinforcements, he divided his force to attack the camp from different sides. At the head of one detachment—about 300 men—Custer rode blindly into a battle—or, rather, an ambush—from which neither he nor one white man with him came out alive. Reno, with most of Custer's remaining troops, was cooped up on a hill by swarms of Indians and barely escaped.

Custer's Death. It was Sitting Bull who had planned this death trap for Custer's soldiers. But in the battle itself, Gall, war chief of the Sioux, was the actual commander. Sitting Bull took no part in the fight. He sat at the door of his tent well out of bullet range, howling hymns to the Great Spirit and working spells of jugglery for his warriors' success.

Knowing the government would take swift revenge for Custer's death, Sitting Bull retreated, fighting, before the soldiers' advance and at last quietly slipped over the border into Canada, where he was safe from pursuit. There he stayed until the country's first clamor of rage had died down. When he was called upon to surrender, Sitting Bull summed up the whole Indian question in this savage reply: "No Indian ever lived who loved the white man, and no white man ever lived who loved the Indian. The Great Spirit made me an Indian, but he did not make me a slave to the white man, and I will not be one. Your government has made fifty-two treaties with the Sioux and has kept none of them."

In 1881 Sitting Bull accepted terms of peace and came back to the United States. There he settled near the Standing Rock agency in North Dakota. He made several tours of the east, was on exhibition in New York and elsewhere, and earned money selling his pictures and autographs. His adventurous career seemed at an end. But a few years later he was busy as of old stirring up his "nation" to discontent, advising them not to give up their remaining land to the white man, and transmitting to them fiery messages from the Great Spirit. He was in 1889 one of the preachers (if not the secret originator) of a doctrine that an Indian messiah was about to come to earth to bury all the white men thirty feet under ground and give the whole country back to the savages. This sort of talk goaded the Indians to fresh revolt. And again Sitting Bull was the central figure in a Sioux uprising. To nip the insurrection in the bud, a squad of Indian police came to his village on December 15, 1890, to arrest the old chief. He resisted, and shouted to his braves to rescue him. In the hand-to-hand fight and general confusion Sitting Bull was shot dead.

YOUNG WIFE IS TIED TO A WILD BRONCHO

Body Found With a Lariat About the Neck and Husband Is Accused.

San Rafael, N. M.—The torn and bleeding body of Mrs. Juan de la Chamzal, the young wife of a prosperous ranchman living near here, was found lying on the plains miles from the ranch. About the neck of the young woman was the noose of a lariat, one end of which had been frayed by being dragged across the rough expanse of country until the rope had been cut through. This gave the mounted sheriff and his deputies a clew which they followed to the ranch itself.

There it was found that two weeks ago while her husband was absent from home some one called her to her window and an instant later carried her to the compound where she was tied to the wildest broncho on the ranch. The authorities claim the feat was accomplished only after the woman's assailant had shown the rarest horse subduing qualities.

Chamzal, the husband, was found by a sheriff's posse 100 miles from his ranch home. He was arrested, charged with the crime. The authorities expect to prove that he was enraged because during his absence from home his wife went into town to a theater with a male relative.

ELKS FIGHT OUT KINGSHIP

Younger Buck Masters the Older in a Terrific Combat Before the Startled Herd.

Danville, Pa.—Moving picture men lost a grand opportunity by not being in the vicinity of the game preserve of Alexander Billmeyer, at Washingtonville, when they might have snapped a fight for supremacy between the monster elk Jumbo, and his younger rival Job. The fight, which was a thriller from the start, lasted one hour, and resulted in the downfall of Jumbo and the exaltation of Job. The wild animals fought ferociously and without a minute's let-up. Mr. Billmeyer describes the fight as unparalleled by anything he has ever seen.

The bulls were deborned about the last of August, and it was the first time they have been permitted to come together since. Jumbo weighed about 1,400 pounds while his rival weighs but 1,200. Job, however, is younger and had the advantage of agility and endurance.

Time after time the animals would retreat a distance from each other and then come together with such force that they were thrown by the recoil back on their haunches.

The herd of elk stood about watching the fight and ready to accept the victor as their leader. From now on Jumbo takes second place.

Deer Disputed With Locomotive. Trout Run, Pa.—Disputing the right of way of a passenger train on the Northern Central railroad, a buck deer was run down and killed. He was loping along the tracks and when the engineer blew his whistle the deer lowered his head and tried to buck the engine off the track.

TERRIER AND THE LIONESS

Little Dog Braves Wounded Wild Beast and Saves Life of His Master.

That victory is not always a matter of size or strength was pleasingly illustrated in the case of the dog that did his duty so effectively in the incident here related.

A man named De Beer had started early one morning for a journey on foot in Matabeleland, leaving his boy to pack up and follow him. He had not gone half a mile when he heard a growl and turning, saw an immense lioness about fifty yards away and rapidly approaching. She was within twenty paces when he fired. The shot broke the beast's jaw.

The second shot broke one of her legs. The third, fired just as she sprang on De Beer, missed altogether and the man was borne down.

In a few seconds he was mauled and bitten and his left hand severely injured. There seemed little hope that he could escape alive, for his gun was out of reach and the lion, lying on him, prevented him from moving.

But with De Beer was one companion, a little terrier. The tiny animal flew bravely at the lioness' ear, got a good hold and hung grimly on. This made the brute shift a little, and De Beer was able to reach his rifle again with his right hand and shoot the lioness through the chest. She fell dead on top of him, his left hand still in her mouth.

SULPHUR TAKEN FROM WELLS

How It Is Forced From Great Depths in Louisiana by Means of Hot Water.

Within recent years Sicily, so long famous for its exportation of sulphur, has suffered from the competition of the United States. In Sicily sulphur is mined in the solid form. At Lake Charles, La., near the Gulf of Mexico, a little over 200 miles from New Orleans, sulphur is obtained from deep deposits in the form of a liquid.

Wells driven to a depth of 800 feet in search of petroleum revealed instead a rich deposit of sulphur. To obtain the mineral hollow tubes were driven into the earth. Each sulphur well consists of three tubes, one within another. Through the outer tube hot water is forced down, and it issues through perforations near the bottom. Through the central tube hot air is driven a little lower than the points where the hot water escapes. Through this third tube, inclosed between the other two, the liquid sulphur, dissolved by the water, rises to the surface under the combined influence of the pressure of the column of water and impulsion of the rising air. The liquid sulphur is led into wooden reservoirs, where it cools and hardens.

Ruthless Destruction of Books.

Napoleon was indirectly responsible for the destruction of a vast quantity of books. In 1812 he framed a law allowing goods to be imported from the United Kingdom, provided that the importer shipped an equivalent quantity of French goods to this country. French merchants generally met the requirements of this law by shipping books to the value of the wares they wished to import. Having served to gain the necessary permit, the books were thrown overboard on the way to England, as there was no demand for them here. Shippers could well afford to do this, for coffee and sugar were then about ten times dearer in France than in England. It has been estimated that books to the nominal value of four million dollars were destroyed in this way.

To End Log Rafts.

Columbia rivermen believe that the recent disasters overtaking a number of the ocean-going log rafts which were being sent from the river to California have been the means of sounding the doom of this method of shipping lumber down the coast. In support of this conclusion it is pointed out that the steamer Carlos, on her last trip, took out a deckload of piling from Stella. Heretofore the great bulk of the piling from that point has been shipped to California in the form of rafts.—Shipping Illustrated.

The Damp Weather Brings On Rheumatism and a Host of Other Ills

FORTIFY YOURSELF. DO NOT LET EVERY CHANGE IN THE WEATHER MAKE YOU MISERABLE.

When the vertebrae of your spine become subluxated or out of position through a jar, wrench, fall or muscular contraction the nerve entering the body at that particular point of the spine becomes impinged and refuses to supply its normal amount of force to the organ or organs which it feeds. These organs in turn become weakened and when a change of weather occurs they are unable to stand the change, irritation, sickness and disease set in. Keep every organ in your body plentifully supplied with nerve force and avoid these troubles. When the organs of the body are supplied with the right amount of nerve force they throw off sickness and weather conditions do not effect you. See the Chiropractor as regularly as you would your dentist. Keep your spine straight and you'll be well. If a change in the weather effects you make haste to see the Chiropractor. Some organ in your body is weakened and must be strengthened or serious complications will arise. Special trips will be made into the country when desired. Chiropractic adjustments are not severe.

Al Lippe, the New York boxing promoter and manager, who spends about as much of his time in Paris as in New York, is going across again in September. He will take four boxers with him. They are: Frankie Burns, the Jersey City bantamweight, Frank Papke, an amateur lightweight, Jeff Smith, the Bayonne middleweight, and Bill Papke, brother of Frank Papke and the former middleweight champion.

Burns, it is understood, will appear again in the ring in the gay capital. One of his opponents will be Ledoux, whom Dan McKetrick so highly touts.

Pitcher Larue Kirby of the Traverse City baseball club of the Michigan State league has been sold to the New York Giants. Manager Hamilton of the Traverse City team says the price paid was $2,500.

His employment is as risky as that of an aviator, he learns. Held tried nearly every company in the country, without results until a western company, at a special rate, agreed to take the risk.

The pitching days of little Gene Krapp, of the Cleveland Naps, are believed to be at an end. Trainer Buhies of the Naps, thinks so, at least so far as this season is concerned, and so does Krapp himself.

CARDINALS DEFEAT FAST LINE CITY AGGREGATION

Janesville Cardinals added another victory to their long line yesterday afternoon when they defeated the fast Van's Colts of the Line City, by the score of 10 to 0. The games they have played this season and are considered one of the fastest amateur teams in the southern part of the state, while on the other hand the Colts have beaten every team in the Line City and are strong contenders for the championship of the southern part of the state. Moon, Beloit's favorite pitcher, was on the mound for the Colts, and was hit very often. Janesville's victory was due to the pitching of Howard, who struck out sixteen men, and the hitting of Cronin and Connel, the former getting two two-baggers and a home

Krapp's arm has given him trouble all year, and recently it has been worse than ever. He can't raise his arm above his head. If his arm threatens to keep him prominently off the mound, Manager Davis will endeavor to convert him into an infielder. There is not a better fielding pitcher than Krapp in either league.

World is that Jack Graney, the injured Cleveland Nap, is mending as fast as can be expected, but at the very earliest it will be along about the first of September before he can get back into the game.

Sir A. Conan Doyle, the Englishman who writes such thrilling detective stories, has worked up a clever scheme which he thinks will enable England to win the next Olympic contest. He suggests that a single team for the whole empire, including Australia, Canada, etc., be entered hereafter, instead of separate teams for the mother country and the various colonies. "We have an analogy in the case of the United States," he says, "whose score points include negroes, red Indians and Hawaiians."

George Leidy, of San Antonio, Texas, has come to the conclusion that it doesn't pay to be sick. During his recent illness First Baseman Frank Metz held down Leidy's job as manager of the San Antonio ball team. When Leidy got well again, he was without a job. President Block of the club said Metz was a better man for the place.

PARKERS SWAT BALL FOR EASY VICTORY

Defeat Hanson Team in Only Contest Played in Commercial League Saturday.

Heavy hitting on the part of the Parker Pen players netted them 14 runs in their game with the Hanson team at the driving park diamond on Saturday afternoon. The Hanson men seemed helpless before Abraham's twisters and were able to secure but one tally. Parker stock took a boost and gloom prevailed the Hanson camp as a result.

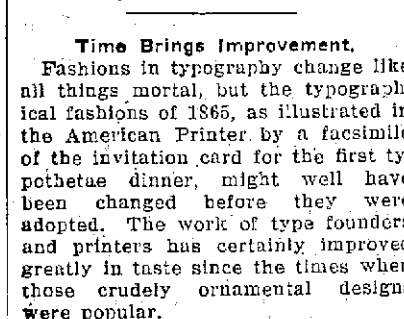

The Hanson-Parker game was the only contest in the commercial league last Saturday as the Northwestern nine forfeited to the Machine company and the two games scheduled at Athletic park were called off. Interest was especially keen in the one game, however, owing to the recent success of the cabinet makers which had inspired confidence to the extent that they expected to land at least second berth in the league. The pen makers have a substantial margin over them now but they have played three games less than their opponents of Saturday. Consequently the standings may be changed when the number of games is evened up.

In the game Saturday Manager Enright's reported bid in the line of a pitcher hailing from Oregon, failed to make the expected showing and he was retired in favor of Connell who held the Parkers to eight hits. The damage had been done, however, for the penmakers started scoring in the first inning and seemed intent on making the total as large as possible. Their hits were made to count and bungling on the part of their opponents assisted them in no uncertain way. The furniture makers were credited with but seven scattered hits from Abraham's delivery and the best they could do was to prevent a shut-out.

of which became laws in 1911, and Mr. Gettle is recorded as voting for all of those that passed. (Page 450 Assembly Journal).

"In his advertising matter, Mr. Gettle gives 18 reasons why he should be returned to the legislature, the most of which are because he supported local bills that affected his district. Among the others is the expensive binder twine plant which is pretty sure to prove a costly experiment. He is also on record as opposing the appointment of a committee to investigate the plants in Minnesota, Michigan and Indiana before installing the plant in Wisconsin. It might also be added that not a wheel has yet turned in the state plant nor is there any present prospect of its being put into commission.

"He says he worked hard for amendment to the tuberculosis test law, abrogating the compulsory features and giving the farmers a fairer compensation for cattle slaughtered. Admit it. But the same law is considered vicious for it provides for no compensation at all after 1912. While he did not vote for the income tax law, he defends it and wants it amended and retained. When it comes to appropriation measures and the establishment of new commissions, Mr. Gettle has a consistent record of voting for everything that came along asking for public funds. Among them were providing for the celebration of Perry's victory on Lake Erie ($40,000). Voted on appropriation to the widow of H. W. Cheynoweth for legal services after the claim had been turned down by the governor and two previous legislatures. Voted to purchase state parks and a fixed annual appropriation for ten years to be used for forest reserve lands. For Camp Randall Memorial park ($25,000). Providing for the purchase of lands at $1200 per acre, marshes at that, which a few years before were bought for $50 per acre. The local trades people will also be interested in learning that he voted for a memorial to congress in regard to the establishment of the parcels post. Mr. Gettle introduced the bill to create a state board of public affairs with powers of supervision and inspection of public bodies and other public matters, a sort of commission to boss and supervise the numerous other commissions the state maintains at top-heavy expense.

"These are a few things dug out of the record to show that Mr. Gettle is not a safe or conservative person to be permitted to vote away the taxpayers' money.

"The charge that the last legislature was the most reckless and profligate ever assembled in the state seems to be pretty well proven by the records. The taxpayers are just a little anxious to know why the expense of state government has grown from four to twelve million dollars in twelve years. Ex-Governor Hoard thinks he has discovered the secret when he says, 'At the bottom of all lies the primary law which lets in a lot of small, narrow, cheap, politicians to the legislature. Under the old caucus system such men could not get a chance to make laws.'

"Finally, Mr. Gettle, you are seeking a nomination on the republican ticket and the people are entitled to know, if nominated, will you support the nominees of your party? The other candidates have declared themselves. Will you?"

PARTY SUCCESS ESSENTIAL.

Voters should not forget that at the coming primaries the nomination of county officers takes place. Rock county is republican by a good majority in county politics and the only way to select the best men for the offices is to go to the republican primaries and vote for them. You can vote only for the republican or democratic candidates, no splitting the ticket and voting for a democrat for one office and republican for the other. Vote straight, either the republican or democratic ticket, and if choosing between the two, vote the republican.

NEED RESTRICTIONS.

The sad accident on Saturday which caused the death of the child on West Milwaukee street, while doubtless unavoidable, brings into prominence the fact that before permitted to run an automobile, all drivers should be compelled to pass a severe test to show their capability of handling the steering gear. It might be well for the next legislature to consider the passage of such a law, limiting the age of drivers of cars, and making it compulsory that they secure a state license only issued after passing rigid examinations.

SECOND CHOICE.

This second choice law is going to be tried out for the first time this fall. It is most complicated and every voter is advised to familiarize himself with its requirements; otherwise he will make such a serious mistake that his original choice candidate will not be benefited. If you do not understand it vote the same old way and pay no attention to the new fangled notion.

If Janesville had a swimming beach, as other cities have, guarded by a capable man, it is probable that the seven sad drownings of the past summer would not have been. However, Janesville neglects this feature of civic life and the river continues to take its toll. It is the penny-wise pound-foolish policy.

Some of these aspirants for office on the republican ticket have answered all sorts of questions, but failed to state whether they intend to support the national republican ticket at the November election. This would seem essential if they wish the support of the republican voters. Speak up gentlemen and air your views on this subject.

Summer resorters do not relish this August as dealt out in chunks by the weather bureau and it is rumored a petition will be filed with the president to remove the man responsible for the situation.

Again Rock river has gathered its toll and the sad death of Mr. Hemming yesterday is to be most sincerely mourned by his many friends and acquaintances and sympathy is extended to his bereaved parents.

Now that the three days of horse racing are over the horsemen are planning for a bigger and better meet next August that will attract some of the best horses in the country to the Janesville tracks.

This is the period of the year when the farmers begin preparing for the annual pumpkin shows in their immediate vicinity. Janesville has no show of this kind but Evansville has so let's make this show the best it can be by attending it en masse.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

HENRI DUNAUT'S DREAM.

Henri Dunaut was a wealthy young man. Like many other sons of the rich, he knew nothing better than to spend his money for personal pleasure.

Then one day he had a vision. It was the vision of the Red Cross, a dream uniting the whole world under one banner for the relief of human suffering. Yes, it was "only a dream," men said.

But Henri Dunaut started out to make his dream come true. Like Paul, he was not dissatisfied to the heavenly vision. He spent his life and his fortune in organizing the International Society of the Red Cross. It was a gigantic realization of a giant task, the uniting of the world of men in works of common mercy.

What was money beside this dream? And so Henri Dunaut literally became poor that the world through his poverty might become rich in pity and in deeds of mercy.

And the world forgot.

Not long since it remembered what it owed Henri Dunaut, the founder of the Red Cross. He was old and poor, having impoverished himself in his labors. He was voted the Nobel peace prize, which will amply provide for him until his death.

Who of the moderns has dreamed or accomplished a nobler dream? Talk of captains of industry—the world is tired of the stories of material success. Here is a captain of mercy. Here is a man who has syndicated the good Samaritan.

Where battlefield or fire or flood or earthquake or pestilence may be, there is the race of civilized men leagued together for the succor of bruised humanity.

We talk about the brotherhood of man.

Here is a visualized brotherhood, a colossal union of human hearts, a merciful mission in whose labors of love is no distinction of race or creed or color. And Henri Dunaut has been one of those of whom the world was not worthy.

But now—

Now the world will not forget until he is dead. The world has a way of remembering its modest heroes only when they die.

The world loves you, Henri Dunaut.

Miss Lucy Price.

Miss Lucy Price, newspaper woman, who is secretary of the Ohio Society Opposed to Women's Suffrage has worked up a lively fight on the subject. Suffragists had it all their own way until Miss Price got busy. Now it's an open question whether the constitutional amendment giving votes to women will carry. Miss Price is making speeches, getting out literature and supervising cartoons.

Value of Choice Ideas.

Few things matter more to us than the entry of choice ideas into our outlook. Let the "practical" man condemn them if he will; those minute and delicate powers give the tinge to our thoughts, the bias to our theories, that determine our whole attitude towards life and shape the destiny of nations.—George Bourne.

Matter of Supply.

The witness testified that he had been knocked down by a motor-car and that the chauffeur, who was joy riding, had given no warning of his approach. "Do you mean," asked the judge, "that he didn't have a horn?" "No, your honor," replied the witness. "I think he had too many."

The jewels were promptly returned to the owner.

WILLIAM HEMMING DROWNED YESTERDAY

JANESVILLE YOUNG MAN MET DEATH WHILE SWIMMING IN RIVER NEAR CRYSTAL SPRINGS PARK.

SEIZED WITH A CRAMP

Body Was Recovered Within Five Minutes After It Sank But Efforts to Resuscitate Young Man Were Futile.

William Hemming, aged eighteen, of this city, was drowned Sunday afternoon about half past two o'clock, when seized with a cramp while swimming in the river just above Crystal Springs park, and a short distance out from the pier at Judge Field's cottage.

The body was recovered from the water within five minutes after the young man had uttered his cry for help, but despite the efforts of people who were nearby at the time, and of Dr. E. F. Woods, who was called to work over him, life could not be restored.

Heart failure, brought on by swimming soon after eating a hearty meal is said to have been assigned as the cause of the young man's death.

Hemming and a friend, Emmett Connors, had paddled up the river just after dinner yesterday afternoon, and had gone in swimming from the pier near Judge Charles L. Field's cottage. They had come out of the water and were sitting in the canoe when they noticed one of the paddles floating in the water a short distance from the boat and Hemming swam out to get it.

After securing the paddle, he stopped swimming and attempted to walk to the canoe, but the water was over his head and he sank. When he arose to the surface, he began swimming again, and had gone but a short distance when he was seized with a cramp and sank again. He had just time to call for aid before his body went under.

The young man's cries for help were heard by John Coen, who was standing on the bank of the river and he jumped into the water without removing any of his clothes. He brought the body to the surface and he and Emmett Connors swam to the shore with the body.

With the aid of people in the vicinity, who were attracted by the accident, the body was rolled to remove the water, and efforts to resuscitate the young man were made.

Dr. E. F. Woods was called from this city and attempted further resuscitation by passing a strong current of electricity through the body but all efforts were futile, although the rescuers worked for more than an hour. The remains were brought to this city in a launch about half past four o'clock yesterday afternoon and were taken to the Nelson undertaking rooms.

The drowning is particularly sad because the young man, not yet out of his teens, had a very bright future in store for him. He was graduated from the Janesville high school in June with the class of 1911, and had just begun work for the Recorder Printing company as an advertising solicitor. But a week or so ago he returned from a canoe trip down the Rock and Mississippi rivers to St. Louis, made in company with Donald Korst of this city.

William Hemming was born in this city December 11, 1893. A mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. William Hemming, and one brother, Victor, who was visiting in Chicago at the time of the drowning, survive him.

Rock river claimed its seventh victim of this year in the tragedy yesterday. The first drowning occurred on March 27, when the body of Curtis Tolpbin of Mt. Vernon, was found in the river. On the night of April 14, Edward Lawrence lost his life, when he fell from the uncompleted Fourth Avenue bridge. Next in order comes the death of Joe Oram, a farm hand, who lost his life while in bathing near the Crook brewery. On the evening of June 22 there was the double tragedy in which Miss Zona Edwards of Monticello and Harry Logerman of this city, were drowned when the canoe in which they were riding overturned and on July 7, Miss Sophia Hershbruner met her death by drowning.

William Hemming was widely known and popular in this city, especially among the young people of the city. Just after his graduation in 1911, he began work as a reporter for the Janesville Recorder, and made many friends among the people with whom he came into contact in his work.

In the high school, outside of his studies he excelled as an athlete, especially in basketball. He was a member of basketball teams of the high school which were sent to the state tournament at Appleton and Madison, and acted as captain of the high school five during his last year in school. After graduation, he became member of the Lakota Cardinals and played with them during the past season.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock from St. Patrick's church. Father E. A. Hemming, of St. Martin, Wis., an uncle of the deceased will conduct the services. Solemn requiem high mass will be celebrated.

Attention Members Lakota Club Special meeting tonight at 8 o'clock relative to attending in a body the funeral of our late brother member, William Hemming, Tuesday, Aug. 20th, 1912. Large attendance desired.

THIEF TAKES SILVER FROM JACKMAN HOME

$500 TO $1,000 WORTH OF SILVERWARE TAKEN FROM C. S. JACKMAN RESIDENCE LAST NIGHT.

OLD PIECES OF VALUE

Forks and Teaspoons Belonging to Mr. Jackman's Mother and Grandmother Stolen—Insurance Covers Loss.

Local police today are keeping a sharp look-out for the thief or thieves who entered the home of C. S. Jackman on East street last night and made their escape with from $500 to $1,000 worth of solid silver ware.

Almost the entire amount of the silver in the dining room, entrance to which was gained by prying open one of the side windows, was taken.

Among the pieces were a number of forks and teaspoons which had been the pride of Mr. Jackman's mother and grandmother, and other pieces which had belonged to Mrs. Jackman's mother. Their intrinsic value was slight when compared with the memories and associations which were connected with them as heirlooms.

Only Mr. Jackman and the maid occupied the house last night as Mrs. Jackman is away on a visit. They both had retired by ten o'clock or shortly after, Mr. Jackman to his room on the second floor and the maid to her chamber on the third.

Neither was disturbed by suspicious noises of any kind during the night and nothing was known of the entrance to the house until this morning when Mr. Jackman noticed that some one had been in the dining room.

He places the probable time of the burglary at midnight or shortly after at which there was a thunder storm raging. The noise of the thunder might very easily have drowned the sounds which the burglar might have made in affixing an entrance.

Once inside the house the thief evidently went about his work with a celerity and definiteness which indicated that such an occupation was not unusual for him. The drawers of the buffet and sideboard were opened and the silver taken from the boxes. He used napkins to wrap up his loot and was careful to leave everything in order. He emptied the sugar from the sugar-bowl onto a napkin and left it on the dining room table, but the doors and drawers to the sideboard and china closet were all closed.

A clean sweep was made of nearly the entire amount of silver, as only a few of the larger pieces such as plates were left. It is thought that these were not taken as they would be unwieldy to carry. As far as could be learned the burglar confined his operations, up the dining room alone and made no effort to search the upper stories of the house for jewelry or valuables. The drawers of a table in the library which adjoins the dining room was left open which is the only indication that he worked there except in the dining room.

The entire job was done within five minutes time according to the police.

The mode of entrance at first puzzled Mr. Jackman who was certain as was the maid that all doors and windows were locked before they retired last night. One of the dining room windows was open a little ways this morning and upon examination it was found that the screws in the casing had been forced out by the prying of a chisel at the bottom of the window.

Chief of Police Appleby who was notified early this morning made an examination of the premises and found marks on a trellis which supported a vine near the window in question and also found the marks of the chisel or instrument with which the forcing was done.

Mr. Appleby also found scratches of the prying tool on the windows in the front of the house where it is evident that entrance was first sought. These are never opened, however, and efforts of the burglar were at once directed to opening the window on the side of the house which yielded after a few minutes of work.

Mr. Jackman said today that he did not know just how much of the silver ware had been stolen. He estimated the loss at $400 to $500 but would not know exactly until his wife who has been out of the city for a week, returned. She has an inventory of the silver and can tell how serious is the loss. Burglary insurance was carried which will make recompense for the intrinsic value of the pieces should they never be regained.

The police are of the opinion that one man was present he was engaged as a lookout. There is little doubt but that the offenders made away with their loot before morning, hurrying out of the city on one of the night freights. The police are keeping a watch, however, in hopes of obtaining a clue of some kind.

Birds Appropriate Wasps' Nest.

An unidentified bird had captured the palm in this neighborhood for a unique place in which to build its nest. It has selected a wasps' nest at the gable end of a house in Lovely street and built its nest therein. The nest is made of cotton batting, sticks and grass. The wasps have been at work on the nest for several years and what they will have to say when they return and find their house occupied remains to be seen.—Baltimore American.

A Grasp of the Hand.

There are times when a grasp of the hand is almost a sacred thing. In sorrow it may impart comfort or convey sympathy more effectively than words. Again, it may be a warrant of the reliability of friendship or a pledge of honor; also an expression of approval or of admiration. Did you ever hear of a man's growing lean by the reading of "Romeo and Juliet" or blowing his brains out because Desdemona was maligned?—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

REMNANT OF THE ACADIANS

Small Group of Magdalen Islands Populated by Descendants of Those Unfortunate People.

Up in the center of the Gulf of St. Lawrence the small group of Magdalen islands, are populated by three or four thousand direct descendants of the Acadians under Champlain and De Monts, who were driven out of New France, Nova Scotia, by the English.

Since the first settlement in 1763 generations of the same families have raised scanty crops in the valleys and fed sheep and cattle on the high, conical hills which constitute a prominent feature of an insular landscape.

Year after year men have gone out on the waters of the gulf in search of the cod, mackerel and lobsters on which a livelihood depends. They are a simple, primitive people, these natives of the Magdalen, laboring all the while under circumstances that are most discouraging.

The archipelago contains 12 or 13 distinct islands, including several grim rocks which are not inhabited and never will be. But the remarkable feature about the physical formation of the whole group is the way in which one island is in some instances connected with another by a long stretch of sandy beach, enabling a person, if he desires to do so, to go for a score of miles or more along the most barren shore in the world, one that is uninhabited and unrelieved by vegetation of any kind, and the only animal life being the thousands of gulls, terns, gannets and other sea fowl which are extremely numerous in all this region.

As to Adhesive Postage Stamps.

Rowland Hill had nothing to fear from enlightened officers of health forbidding that "stamp licking" would "disseminate consumption, diphtheria, smallpox and scarlet fever." It is remarkable to recall with what enthusiasm the public took to stamp licking in 1840. The adhesive stamp seems to have been only an afterthought of the great postal reformer, whose original proposal covered only the sale of ready-stamped envelopes. Even when he admitted the adhesive stamp as an alternative, he thought it would be "reserved for exceptional cases." But in spite of newspaper jeers at "bits of sticking plaster for dabbling on the letters the public soon showed its mind. The stamped Mulready envelope proved a dead failure, while for weeks the supply of "sticking plaster" fell far below its demand.

SOLDIER LADDIES FROM FARMS AND WORKSHOPS ARE GETTING THEIR ANNUAL WORKOUT WITH PROFESSIONALS

Top picture shows a company from Kansas lined up at the Ft. Leavenworth camp for grub. Below is an example of pontoon building, and a detachment off for a hike.

Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. — The "rookies" are here now and coming more on every train. But they're so good at soldier things that it's no easy matter for plain civilians to pick them out from the U. S. regular army troops with whom they're working.

The plan of drilling the militia each season with standing army detachments at regular forts has proven a great success. The technique of the citizen-soldier has been bettered marvelously and the professionals now mingle with the amateurs on terms that begin to approach comradeship.

If war comes, it won't be a hard matter under the new conditions to weld the national guard with the regular men into one staunch fighting force.

The militia is getting real drill in the most practical forms of military duty. No real war time could bring more arduous work.

One of the drills that excites great interest in the guardsmen is pontoon building. Many companies of militia are now able to throw a bridge of boats across a river with the precision of men who have been soldiers all their lives. This branch of work on ordinary occasions is delegated to engineer companies.

Instructions are being given all the troops in the new extended order regulations. Night marches, bivouacs and night attacks are included.

CAN NEW YORK CITY BE EASILY TAKEN BY FOE?

New York. — New Yorkers are keeping a nervous eye out toward the Narrows, watching for hostile smoke, and any minute the towers of the Singer building and the Woolworth building are expected to be clipped off with a projectile. The National Guardsmen are hurrying north, into middle Connecticut, leaving the city to shift for itself, with nothing but the guns of the forts to bar the approach of the enemy.

The newspapers of the city are informing the citizens that it is necessary for the guardsmen to go north, for there is a hostile army approaching the city and an army need scarce get within forty miles of New York to get within range of it.

At least that is the condition of affairs according to the plan of the most extensive and important maneuvers ever held between the United States army and the National Guard. Twenty thousand men are taking part in the maneuvers, which are attracting the attention of the whole military world and which have been the subject of exciting discussion for weeks past.

The maneuvers are the largest in the history of the country. In the Massachusetts war games of 1909, there were some 12,000 men engaged, while at the regular army mobilization last year there were 15,000 or 16,000 troops, but this was counting by regiments in the present instance there would be about 30,000 men in the campaign.

There are a number of regiments of regulars from all branches of the service, to impart to the greener guardsmen something of the knack of war. The point of interest in these and other maneuvers is how the men from cities and farms will carry themselves in a crisis. The maneuvers are under supreme command of Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, but over 100 officers of the regular army are participating in them.

At The Theatre

"OFFICER 666."

A young millionaire globe trotter returning home to find his bachelor quarters occupied by a burglar who, not satisfied with having appropriated the millionaire's name and getting himself engaged to a pretty society girl on the strength of it, is rapidly disposing of a fine collection of paintings gathered by the aforesaid millionaire from the art centers of the world. This is the situation when the curtain goes up on the first act of "Officer 666," a melodramatic farce by Augustin MacLugh, which Cohan & Harris will present in this city during the coming season.

How the real millionaire regains possession of his name and home, and how he eventually wins the hand and heart of the sweet young thing who has pledged her troth to a member of the light fingered gentry under the impression that he is a simon-pure scion of wealth and social position, is left to the telling of the players.

"THE DIVORCE QUESTION."

Rowand and Clifford intend to produce shortly in this city William Anthony McGuire's intensely interesting play with a purpose. "The Divorce Question," one of the biggest successes of years and which set Chicago talking and thinking to such an extent that it played to over a hundred performances during the heated term in that city, and only previous arrangements necessitated its withdrawal.

The story of the play wherein two children are sacrificed upon the altar of selfishness and divine rings true in every sense and graphically illustrates the evil and misery thereof.

William Anthony McGuire the author reverses the heretofore popular conception of a child's duty to parents claiming that the real obligation rests upon those responsible for creating life, and states that every child is entitled to its parents. Upon this foundation the author has built a truly great play.

ANNIVERSARY DATES ARE TO BE OBSERVED

Brave Fight At New Ulm Fifty Years Ago Against Savage Indians To Be Depicted Again.

New Ulm, Minn., Aug. 19.—The celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Indian massacre which took place in New Ulm in August 1862 opened here today and will continue during the week. The town is filled with visitors for the occasion, and more are arriving on every train.

Of the residents of New Ulm which participated fifty years ago in the defense of the town only twenty-five are living and they have been made honorary members of the reception committee and some of them are meeting visitors at the trains as they arrive. Two buildings in the town are marked with tablets. They are two of four which remain which were built before the war. One was used as a refuge for women and children, where hundreds huddled together in the small basement. The other is now occupied by a hotel and was used as a hospital by the late D. Mivo of Rochester, Minn., who came here to assist in the care of the wounded after the first attack by the Indians.

A party of Indians is expected today from the Lower Sioux Agency at Morton, Minn. This town was occupied by the Indians in 1862 and from which the outbreak radiated. They will set up a village which will be one of the features of interest during the week.

LAUNDRYMEN JOIN DEMAND FOR UNADULTERATED FABRIC

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 19.—The resolution demanding a pure fabrics law, which was passed by the recent national convention of dyers and cleaners in St. Louis, will receive a strong endorsement from the annual convention of the Laundrymen's National association here this week. The argument is used that the laundryman or the cleaner is blamed for deterioration of goods when in fact the quick wearing out of the so-called pure silks or linens is due to inferior material. The laundrymen will join in the request to Congress asking that body to pass a law compelling the manufacturers to stamp their goods plainly, telling whether they are pure or adulterated materials.

FLORIDA EVERGLADES EXAMINATION REPORT IS MADE PUBLIC NOW

"It is useless," the majority added, "to frame regulations for the government of employees, many of whom work for low salaries, and permit those in high position to despise all restraint. This is particularly true when the offense is to capitalize official position and collect dividends from official opportunity. Your committee has no authority to deal further with this matter. It calls the particular attention of Secretary Wilson to the record."
The committee conclusions are: The Department majority report called the department vacillating and lacking conception of the vast investment of millions of dollars in undertaking the reclamation of the Everglades. Said it constantly subordinated the inquiry to other work in which members of Congress were particularly interested and finally abandoned it after an expenditure of $11,107 without definite results. Its accounting system deficient and its discipline lacking. The minority upheld the Department.

Secretary Wilson—Falsely credited with authority of the circular letter to which real estate promoters first objected because of its cautionary nature. Promptly suppressed it and refused publication of revised bulletin experts as a report on the Everglades. Minority reported that he did not abuse his legal discretion.

Assistant Secretary Hays—Arraigned by majority. Minority called the criticism of Hays unfair and unwarranted; that his interest in the possible sale of North Carolina lake led to Leigh Hunt and others was due to his well known public interest in the development of community country life.

Drainage Engineer Wright—Majority said he "accepted fees and commissions whenever offered." Minority reported that no evidence was established that any financial statement indicating great gains from the Martamskeet, N. C., project were exhibited by Wright to Hays. Financial statement reaching committee was "fanciful and ridiculous and would have discredited the scheme at once."

Dr. C. G. Elliott, Chief of Drainage, and Assistant Drainage Engineer Moorehouse—Majority report stated that they admitted making an arrangement which the majority regarded as in violation of the law and of sound public policy but that there was no profit intended in it and the Department had disciplined them too severely. The minority agreed as to the over-disciplining but added that the committee had no oversight of the Department's discipline and that if such oversight were a fixed institution the Secretaries of Agriculture and their subordinates would become abject slaves to "red tape."

MARSANS IS THE REDS' BEST BET AS A HITTER

Armando Marsans.

All hail Armando Marsans! He's a Cuban and he's a Cincinnati Red, but in spite of that he is counted the greatest all round player to break into the major leagues since Joe Jackson began with the Cleveland Naps.

Marsans is the best hitter in the Cincinnati aggregation. His batting average is .335. He runs bases so fast that it makes the spectators' heads dizzy, and he's some run getter, too.

Marsans' style at bat is a cross between that of Lujoie of Cleveland and Cobb of Detroit. He never stands still. He can hit the ball while moving as easily as any other way.

Marsans is one of the most dangerous pinch hitters in the National League. He can be depended upon in a crisis.

Marsans is one of the best outfielders in the league. He is on the job every minute.

And Marsans is popular. No man in the league is better liked than he is.

Activity in the stock market has increased the demand for money but rates remain unchanged. This has been due to the gradual transference to London of many large speculative stock market accounts. Even at the high rates which obtain offering of desirable commercial paper are not well paying for heavy withdrawals by the taken. New York bankers are pre-interior to move the crops. The London Economist anticipates a heavy demand for banking accommodations at Berlin during September.

THE STOCK MARKET.

With the advance in prices the market has broadened and has now extended to many of the minor issues. The activity has encouraged several pools operating in the market to bid up the shares they are interested in. Nevertheless outside of any manipulative influence the movement has a firm basis in the year's agricultural prospects. It is now conservatively estimated that this year's crops give promise of having a money value of at least nine billion dollars, an increase over last year of six hundred million dollars. This has generated an optimistic feeling in business circles and stimulated commercial activity. Stocks which have been on sale on advances have been withdrawn for the time being. This has materially aided the upward movement.

Much of the short interest in the market has been eliminated by the advance leaving the market in a position weak. If prices are to be carried much higher another short interest must be encouraged. Should prices continue to advance without a moderate recession from this level it would seem to me that a drastic recession can be expected when the market has worked three to five points higher. On the other hand a recession at this time would seem to indicate ultimately a further advance.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

American Woolen, Pfd.—This issue, which receives dividends at the rate of 10% is selling around 90 and is decidedly preferable to many of the Industrial Preferred shares recently brought out. The American Woolen Company having no bonded indebtedness these shares are a first lien on the assets of the Company. At present prices they yield 7.8% on the money invested.

I do not anticipate that a readjustment of the tariff on woolen goods will seriously affect the Company's earnings and believe the present depressed price is an opportunity to buy this issue for a fair profit. A revival of commercial activity will be reflected in the earnings of this company this year.

American Cotton Oil.—The fiscal year ending Aug. 31st is expected to show net earnings of about $300,000 out of about 4% on this stock. However the preceding year showed a deficit of $758,032 which is still to be wiped out. Around 54 this stock looks high.

Pennsylvania R. R. Shares.—Earnings for the first half this year indicate that this railroad will earn this year about 9% on its stock against about 7 1/4% last year. Pennsylvania R. R. stock is a favorite investment among a conservative class of buyers. Upon the splendid earnings and future prospects these shares should sell higher.

PLAN STRING OF DEATH DARING MOTOR BOWLS ACROSS COUNTRY AND NATIONAL LEAGUE TO MANAGE NEW SPORT

Motorcyclist spinning along sides of Philadelphia bowl. Sometimes they go within few inches of top.

The American public has gone crazy about motorcycle racing in the cities where it has been introduced. It is the most thrilling sport yet devised, replete also with the element of contest and personality of contestants. The thrills are based on real danger, too, for occasionally a rider gives his life as the penalty for his daring. The sides of the stadiums are being made steeper each time a new one is built until now the riders go along the sheer sides toward the top almost like a fly along a wall, except they don't go at the pace of a fly. Their momentum makes them stick at the sharp angles. Cleveland motordrome promoters are now building a track at St. Louis and plan a string in cities not yet entered. With other owners, they expect to form a national league within the next few months.

FAME AND NOTORIETY.

THERE is in human nature a general inclination to make people stare, and every wise man has himself to cure of it, and does cure himself. If you wish to make people stare by being better than others, why make them stare until they stare their eyes out. But consider how easily it is to make people stare by being absurd. I may do it by going into a dining room without my shoes.

That it should be considered a desirable thing to draw all eyes to one's self because one's appearance or conduct is such as to excite admiration, seems perfectly natural.

But that it should be considered desirable to draw all eyes to one's self because one's appearance or conduct is so ridiculous, so improper, or so conspicuous as to force attention without the least admiration, seems absurd.

And yet a great many men and women—especially the latter—seem to confuse these two kinds of attention.

At a summer resort where I once visited, one young woman was always in evidence because of her noisy conversation and her eccentric actions. Whenever she went, people stared at her, and instead of realizing that she was making a ridiculous show of herself, she was evidently delighted by the attention she received. One day when she happened to be of our party on a shopping tour in the village two or three of the tradespeople recognized her and called her by name. "You see," she said laughingly and yet with evident pride, "how famous I am."

She should have said "notorious."

That is the trouble with all the foolish people who try to attract attention by their eccentric clothes and manners—they forget that fame and notoriety are totally different things.

The woman who attracts attention by appearing in a skirt so tight that it is almost impossible for her to stoop over or to step up on a street car, or the woman who wears some startling conglomeration of colors, or a street dress cut as low as a ball gown, enjoys the stir she creates, but would she if she really knew what opinion the people who stare have of her?

Perhaps some of my feminine readers resented my saying that women are more prone to try to attract attention at any cost than men. But I really think they are. Men are, rather afraid of being stared at. They are more conservative than women.

And let the woman who likes attention remember this, if she wants to keep her masculine friends—that while a man is willing to have the woman he is with attract attention because of her beauty or her beautiful clothes, he doesn't like her to be stared at because of any eccentricity or loudness in clothes or manner. The women who draw attention to themselves in such ways, the average man will sedulously avoid.

Now surely that ought to reach some hearts that are deaf to all other arguments.

WHAT IS A HEALTHY BABY?

This is a question which the physician hears so often. The physician has given his advice, the mother anxious about her child asks, "well, Doctor, what is a healthy baby?"

I think mothers, on the whole, do the very best they can, and the very best they know, using every means at their command for the betterment and welfare of their children. The exceptions are rare.

Some of the difficulties are: The mother has received so much advice that it is worse than useless, then again so much of the advice is conflicting. Her grandmother tells her one thing, her mother another and a host of relatives and friends are more than anxious to give her their experience and advice. Then as if this were not enough to drive her to distraction, along comes the doctor with his advice which is usually at variance with what she has already had, or it may be so meager that her conception of his meaning is not clear.

Taking the situation as a whole, what is the poor woman to do? Happily these occurrences are not the rule. Twice lucky is she who finding herself confronted with such a problem, has a husband to whom she can go in confidence receiving help and encouragement to solve the problem. For after all, in such instances, it is she with her mother's love and intuition who must solve it.

Well, what is a healthy baby? He is not necessarily a fat baby nor need he be a thin baby. Some mothers take pride in calling attention to their babies corpulency as evidence of his good health, regardless perhaps of the fact that he has indigestion, or may be in the midst of the proverbial "three months vomiting period."

No, fat alone, is not indicative of health. On the other hand, a thin baby—an unduly thin baby—is not healthy. His crying voice, his expression and manner when crying will give those who know, some information. Still, some babies may be born orators or auctioneers and therefore need begin their training early.

The wise may gather information from the sleeping baby. Is he restless, does he jump and twitch and make grimaces? Or is his sleep tranquil? Is he quiet, contented and self-satisfied during his waking hours? Again, some babies are born thinkers and philosophers and spend a good deal of their waking time good naturedly and placidly contemplating the future.

But a healthy baby is one which sleep more than twelve hours out of the twenty-four without being rocked. A baby whose bowels are regular and the stools soft and yellow, a baby which nurses, approximately, every four hours and is satisfied, a baby which cries but little, a baby which shows progressive development of body and mind, gains constantly in weight and has solid flesh and well shaped bones, one which has good appetite, one which has no vomiting or gas, one which has a clear skin and a good color and looks happy and contented.

LESLIE D. SMITH.

Mrs. T. E. writes: Dear Doctor: I read your articles "Save the Babies" in the Daily Gazette. I have a question that I want to ask you, which has been discussed among mothers where I have resided. "Should matters of sex be taught children who are only five years of age?" I hold that they should not.

Reply: Children at the age of five have no thoughts on sex matters, and if the question was discussed and explained to them they would have no intelligent conception of the matter. Sometimes children of that age ask questions which would almost lead one to believe that they had some idea of the subject. A parent with tact can answer such question by using illustrations, such as, how flower blooms unfold from buds, or how seeds are transformed into plants, or how the caterpillar is metamorphosed into a butterfly.

Parents may, by watching the development of their child, know when it has reached the age when sex matters should be disclosed to it. As a general rule this is between the ages of ten and fourteen.

SUMMER VEGETABLES.

The summer squash is one of the strictly summer vegetables and is most tasty if well seasoned. Perhaps the seasonable is the important feature for a more fast, insipid vegetable is hard to find. A gentleman visiting in a small place where summer squash was abundant, expressed his liking for that vegetable; he was so fond of it he remarked that he could never get enough. The lady with whom he was boarding said he should be fully satisfied, as they had an abundance of the squashes. The first meal when they were simply boiled, drained and salted and served with no other seasonings convinced him that for once he had had enough. He decided it was the seasonings he liked instead of the squash.

One must be lavish with butter in seasoning this dish or it will be unpalatable.

Wash and cut in quarters and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Too long cooking spoils the flavor also. Then drain carefully and chop seasoning with salt, pepper and plenty of butter. Reheat and serve.

A pretty way to serve radishes, though not new, is to cut them to imitate tulips. Begin at the root end and make six incisions through the skin, running up three-fourths of the length of the radish. Pass a knife under the sections of skin and cut down as far as the incisions extend. Place in cold water and the skin will fold back, giving the radish the flowerlike appearance.

Swiss Chard.—This is a vegetable not half well enough known. It is easy to prepare, quick to grow and is most tasty, cooked and served as one does beet greens.

Cucumbers are another popular summer vegetable, for the hot-house variety is too scarce and expensive to tempt the average thrifty housewife. During the summer a small plot of ground will grow plenty for an ordinary family.

Sliced with fresh young onions and served with French dressing is one of the most popular ways of serving them. Mixed with celery, onion and parsley and stuffing a pretty ripe tomato is another well liked combination.

Dolly Has an Adventure

I WILL walk over to the station with you," said Dolly to a friend, who had been spending the evening with her. "I'm sorry John isn't home. But I can play escort I guess. It's not far you know, and we'll take the dog along, and then I'll have company home."

So the two and the dog set out. As they were going down some steps to a walk that ran alongside the railroad tracks for a short distance, Dolly suddenly grasped her friend and said, "Did you see that man?"

"Where?"

"He came from somewhere back of those steps, and I am sure he is following us."

"The friend looked around."

"I see him," she exclaimed.

"What shall we do?"

"Suppose we set the dog on him. Look! I believe Don knows there's something wrong about him. Hear him growl!"

The friend looked around again. "He's gone," she said. "I shouldn't wonder if he's sneaking along in the bushes and will jump out at us."

"O-h," said Dolly. "I'm going to send Don after him. Sick him, Don. Sick him," she urged the dog.

The dog disappeared.

Almost on a run the two hurried for the station.

"I hate to have you go home by yourself," said the friend.

"I have Don and I'll go another way. Where do you suppose the dog is? He's awfully fierce, that's one good thing. He's probably frightened the man away."

Just then the train came rumbling up to the station. Dolly knew the conductor and she started to tell him their adventure. In the midst of her recital a man dashed wildly from the shrubbery with a dog at his heels and hurriedly climbed into the baggage car.

"There he is now," said Dolly.

The conductor became so interested in the affair, he forgot to signal the train to start; and it wasn't until passengers began to poke their heads out of windows that he remembered his duty.

Then as he went through the car to collect tickets, he eyed very sternly a flushed looking man in the smoker who was mopping his brow rapidly.

"Some fool women," said the man, as he noted the conductor's glance, "set a dog on me. The dog nearly bit me. I almost missed the train trying to get away from him."

As for Dolly, she started at every shadow on the way home, and when John returned, she gave him a thrilling account of her adventure. "If the train hadn't come just when it did," she concluded, "there's no telling what might have happened."

Henrietta D. Gould

cloves, allspice and nutmeg—in a bag and boil it in the mixture for an hour. Stir often so it will not burn. Pour into jars and cover with paraffine. Peach and other fruit butters should stand a few weeks before they are used. The spices need not be tied in the bag, but may be put in the butter loose, making it a darker color but improving its keeping qualities.

Canned Peaches—This is the California way and is one of the simplest and best. Remove the skin from freestone peaches by placing them in a wire basket and plunging them into boiling water and then into cold water, when the skin will slip off easily. Remove any imperfections with a silver knife, as steel will discolor the fruit.

Have a syrup ready, made of a half a pound of sugar and a fourth of a cup of water to every pound you have of fruit. Divide the peeled peaches in halves, remove the stones and drop into the syrup. Boil ten minutes and seal while hot. A few of the stones may be left in for flavor.

If any syrup remains, it may be boiled with more sugar and a tablespoon of lemon juice added to each cup of juice and poured into jelly glasses. Peaches require the addition of citric acid before they will jelly. A large ripe pineapple cut into dice and cooked with the peaches gives a fine flavor and may be added to the jelly, marmalade or preserves.

Peach Preserves—Peel the peaches and remove the stones. Break the peaches in a little water until soft. Allow a pound of sugar to every pound of fruit. Put a layer of sugar in the bottom of the preserving kettle and then a layer of fruit until you have used all of both. Let it where it will heat through slowly, strain the kernel water and add it. Boil gently until the peaches are transparent, lift them out and lay on a platter and continue boiling the syrup until it is almost a jelly, removing all the scum as it rises. Fill jars or crocks two-thirds full of fruit and cover with the boiling syrup.

When cold seal with paraffine and lastly with thick paper tied over them.

MILK INJURED BY BOILING.

A reader calls attention to the fact that the editor of a health journal, a well-known physician, says that the statement that has been made that boiling milk injures its nutritive value is an error and that infants can live on boiled milk. It would not be feasible to demonstrate this fully by an actual test, but I am satisfied that boiled milk is injurious to the infant. Albumen, the flesh-forming element of the milk, coagulates at a temperature of about 160, becoming more or less difficult of assimilation, although albumen coagulated by heat can be utilized to a degree by the adult. If the generally accepted view is correct that egg albumen is more easily assimilated without cooking, it must be true that milk albumen is injured by temperature above 160 and that in pasteurizing milk the temperature should not rise above 155.

"INVENTION OF THE EVIL ONE."

It has been said that backache is an invention of the evil one to try women's souls.

Not so. Backache is a symptom of some serious trouble which sooner or later declares itself, either kidney trouble or some female derangement. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon to go to the root of the trouble and quickly relieve this most distressing symptom. Nearly forty years of unparalleled success proves its value in conquering female ills.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am thirty-two and unmarried, and I notice people are beginning to talk to me as if I was an old maid. I have never tried to hide my age, but I don't think I am cranky, and I do not choose to marry, do you think it ought to be thrown up to me?

I have my mother to support and the only man who ever asked me to marry him was too poor to take care of both of us. Besides, I did not care for him enough to marry him.

Must I go through life being twitted with "never having had a chance?" I never felt like telling even my best friends about my one "chance," though of course mother knows.

O. G. N. You are a splendid, sensible woman, and if anybody is so unkind, or so narrow-minded, as to twit you with oldmaidhood, whether it is voluntary on your part or not, just let such twitting roll off you as water rolls off a duck's back. Don't let it hurt you. Simply ignore it. A little practice in ignoring will soon make you imperious, and the twitters tired.

Some of the noblest women in this world are unmarried women.

The biggest work in the world, for women and children, has usually been done by unmarried women. June Addams never had time to marry—she has been too busy doing things for the unfortunate little children of people who married thoughtlessly and often criminally—for many marriages are nothing short of crime.

Any woman who has the strength of mind to remain unmarried, unless she can be married to the right man, is to be honored. It is mighty easy to marry any old "chance" that happens along.

There is one bit of advice that every unmarried woman should heed, however, and that is what one of them told me some time ago.

"A single woman," she said, "must avoid three things as she would the plague. She must not be frumpy foolish or thickly dressed well, fastidiously and becomingly. Don't try to appear younger than you know you look, but do not look any older. Act according to your appearance—don't be fidgety if you look thirty-two, but don't act like a grandmother or like a too-too-sophisticated person, and don't be afraid to be sensible and dignified when the occasion arises.

Keep your hair, complexion and shape in good order.

In short, be sweet and womanly and keep the spirit of youth in your heart.

As for finickiness—"Cut it out" as the boys say. At least, keep strictly private and don't intrude your personal peculiarities upon others.

ED. Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a girl about a year, but the other evening when I called, I found she had gone out with another man. Do you think she had a right to do that without telling me? I always tell her what I am going to do, but lately she hasn't consulted me about anything. Do you think she doesn't care for my company any longer?

If you have been going with a girl a year and you are not engaged to her, she has a perfect right to act without consulting you. She may go out with as many young men as she pleases, at any time, and you are not permitted to have any objections to express yourself peevishly if she is inconsiderate of your feelings.

If you think a good deal of this girl, and wish to marry her, you had better make up your mind to tell her so pretty soon. I should judge that she is getting tired of waiting for you to do that very thing.

You can't expect an attractive girl to wait forever. Go to her and ask her for the right to have something to say if she walks off again with another young man, without consulting you.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Volney

and to believe. She realizes the importance of the reasons as they bear upon the woman's actions better than a man ever could. And isn't that natural? Of course women understand each other better as men understand men better. And doesn't that understanding count very deeply in friendship of any kind?

Then there is, too, in spite of the skeptical men, a sex loyalty among the better women, as there is, too among the better men. They will keep the secrets of another woman; they will defend her publicly more often than will men. And if you will only take the trouble to observe these things with an unprejudiced eye, you will agree that this is true.

There is nothing sweeter, nor more intense, than the friendship of young girls for each other. Possibly it is not so comprehending as that of older women, but it is very, very real. And is unsurpassed by the friendship of any boy or man for another.

So please have men friends—all that you can—for friends of any sort are desirable; but please don't let any one think they can take the place of your women friends, and please don't choose the men instead of women for your confidence unless you are very, very sure of your wisdom and choice.

And remember that the woman who has not cultivated and trusted women friends has missed much of the greatest comfort and joy of life.

"WHEN GOD'S WILL IS DONE IN THE EARTH"

REV. T. D. WILLIAMS DISCUSSED PHASES OF MODERN CIVILIZATION IN SUNDAY MORNING SERMON.

PRESENT CONDITIONS

Compared With Conditions as They Would Exist Were God's Will Done in Earth as in Heaven.

Existing conditions of modern civilization and the manner in which they conflict with conditions as they would exist were God's will done on earth as it is Heaven, were discussed by the Rev. T. D. Williams Sunday in his morning sermon to the congregation of Cargill Memorial Methodist church. As the text of his sermon, Rev. Williams took the last part of the tenth verse of the sixth chapter of Matthew: "They will be done on Earth as it is in Heaven."

The sermon on the Mount was characterized by Rev. Williams as a prayer model, beginning with a recognition of God and a hint as to his dwelling place: "Our Father who art in Heaven." It was also a petition for the establishment of the harmony and glory that enshrine the throne in the heaven of heavens.

A large part of the formula of Christianity, said Rev. Williams, "has to do with its Eschatology," its heaven, its glory, grandeur and perpetuity. Tongue of brilliant powers of oratory have endeavored to describe that land where God dwells and seraphs minister, but no tongue on earth has a command of language to paint the scenes that await God's saints in Paradise.

Progress is slow. "But we are taught that Heaven begins on earth. It would mean a reconstruction of some of our statutes and laws, for the righteous laws of the world have been of slow enactment. Humane or beneficent legislation has been of slow enactment."

As an example of this, Rev. Williams cited the case of John Bright and Mr. Cobden and their fight for the Corn Laws of England, the odds placed against them in their fight, and the perseverance they displayed before securing the legislation they were working for. History says that the commercial policy which England inaugurated in 1846 under the lead of Richard Cobden continued in force throughout the century and under its workings the commercial supremacy of England in the markets of the world has been achieved.

Some of the laws now on the statute books were assailed by Rev. Williams yesterday, who said: "Laws change. They must change. We have some laws in our country that would not stand the glare of the throne. It took a long time to change our laws on slavery. Some said it was right but Lincoln said it was wrong and when he was elected, he was elected on that platform."

"We have now an 'internal revenue law,' and some states have a section of the statutes that permits licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors. If God's will was done on earth as in heaven, would these laws grace or disgrace our statute books?"

Remarks on Politics. "If God's will were done on earth as in heaven it would mean some new guideposts and new alignments in politics. Politics has not reached the last stage of grace yet. Have you read what is going on in the police circles of New York? Have you read what is happening in Los Angeles just now? And by the way have you read of the little vacations they are giving aldermen in Detroit?"

"I suppose we ought not to talk politics in a presidential campaign. It is not house-cleaning time. Political crooks tell us that. House-cleaning time comes after the election. Elect us to office they say, and we guarantee a great era of prosperity and righteousness. They never go around confessing their sins. The only one to confess a blunder is Mr. Roosevelt, who frankly admits he made a mistake when he made Mr. Taft president. I do not know Mr. Taft well enough to pass judgment. He has a hard fight to hold the political grafters of the country in abeyance. When the laws and ideals of heaven obtain in the earth, all political schemes and unholy politics will be consigned to the garbage dump."

Industrial Conditions. When God's will is done in the earth our industrial conditions will be radically changed. Back in Eden God started man as a toiler; it was a divine arrangement, but how toil conditions have been stripped of their divinity. Two railroads in Wisconsin are now summoned into the courts to tell why they kept their employees on duty for over sixteen hours at a stretch. Some private corporations are just as bad. Children, seven, six, five and four years of age in factories, mines and sweatshops of the world, deprived of God's air, and so dwarfed at twenty-out if they live that they are called men and women by courtesy.

Advocates Better Wages. "The laborer is worthy of his hire. What should his hire be? What is he worth to the corporation or consumer. If I insist on wearing shoes I ought to be willing to pay the man who makes them a wage that will give him some of the comforts of life."

As an example of industrial conditions as they exist, Rev. Williams told of a visit to a local factory. "This is an example of what is going on today in the industrial world," he said. "Men and women tramping the treadmill of toil—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday—a check of $10, $12 or 15, and after paying rent, coal bills, grocery bills, drug store bills, dry goods bills and doctor bills there is not enough to buy a sack of candy for the children for Sunday, to drive away the gloom at least one day in seven. When earth is like heaven they will all have a fair chance and a square meal."

On Economic Conditions. Rev. Williams advocated a more equitable distribution of wealth in his sermon yesterday; not a division of the riches as he said the idea of common possession was abandoned long ago, but a little more money for the toiler and little less for the capitalist and employer. Discussing the causes of the uneven distribution of wealth, he said he considered that both the rich man and the toiler were perhaps to be blamed; the rich man being perhaps more greedy than he should be and the laborer a little inclined to be shiftless.

Model homes, model marriages, where God is invited as well as all the neighbors, sincere and spontaneous worship of God, universal recognition of the Almighty, the prevalence of humanitarian impulses, the growth of the spirit of fraternity, love, sacrifice and generosity, and above all the domination of the mind of the Master as the inspiring force of the force of the world were set forth by the pastor as the result that would follow the establishment of God's will in earth as in heaven.

TUBERCULOSIS ORGANIZATION ENDORSES HEALTH CONGRESS.

What Has Been and is Being Done For Consumption Can be Extended.

"Personally, and as a representative of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, I am delighted by the activity of the Wisconsin Committee of the International Congress on Hygiene," is the expression of Dr. Dearholt, Executive Secretary of the former organization when asked for an opinion of the Health Congress to be held in September at Washington.

"It ought to be a comparatively simple task to stop the ravages of most of the other contagious diseases. It's almost impossible to guard a consumptive in his home for two or three years and prevent him from infecting others. That is the reason why we have been compelled to secure county sanatoria. In the case of the contagious diseases of short duration, however, it isn't hard to make people remember. It's just necessary to teach the dangers once. Overcoming contagious diseases seems so impossible to the people who don't know how. The sanitarian, however, knows that it is entirely a matter of personal, family and public cleanliness. The Congress ought to teach people how to be clean, and it will to a great extent."

"Take typhoid, for example,—it comes from eating and drinking the dirty discharges of people suffering from the disease. Dirty hands, dirty dishes, dirty water and dirty food, causes the disease. While it may not be pleasant to think of its pleasant than being sick or to die, because of carelessness or ignorance."

"The International Congress on Tuberculosis was responsible for launching the Wisconsin crusade as a state wide movement against consumption. Encouraged by the success and promise of that campaign, the sanitarians see the dawn of a golden health period in which other preventable diseases as well will ultimately be wiped out of Wisconsin."

GETS INVITATION TO IRRIGATION MEETING

Mayor Fathers Asked to Attend Sessions at Salt Lake City September 30 to Oct. 3.

Mayor James A. Fathers received today an invitation from the secretary of the National Irrigation Congress, asking him to attend the sessions which will be held at Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 30 to Oct. 3. The latter announced that the mayors of all cities were expected delegates to the convention. Cities of Janesville's class are also allowed five delegates to be named by the mayor, and the county is allowed five delegates appointed by the chairman of the county board. Such questions as irrigation in the west, measurement of streams, controlling floods, preservation of forests, co-operation with immigration authorities, and matters of reclamation will be discussed at the meeting.

Mayor Fathers has also received an invitation to the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography which meets at Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 to 28. It is not probable that Janesville will be represented at either of the meetings as any persons attending would necessarily have to pay their own expenses.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

JELLY.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

JELLY is an non-intoxicating mixture which is used to stimulate the appetites of people who are ready to nap after the third course. It is a very wabby and infirm piece of goods, with thick, hand-turned sides, which a rascal continually giving away at the knees and falling face downward on a new tablecloth.

Jelly is made on the hottest days in summer and eaten whenever there is company. It comes in several different sizes which will match anything except the hired man's appetite, and on this account vies with the revolving vinegar crock as a table decoration.

Making jelly in the dog days is one of the warmest occupations known in any civilized tongue.

After a woman has put up the season's pack of crabapple jelly and seen all of it eaten by her husband's relatives she will await the judgment day with mixed feelings of pleasure and pain.

It is very difficult to eat jelly in a composed and fluent manner, as it is liable to slip off and embazon red footprints on somebody's shirtfront. It requires the delicacy and judgment of distance of a slack rope walker to transfer a cross section of grape jelly to the mouth while mingling gaily in the conversation.

Jelly is put up in single mouthfuls, in small glass jars, and is devoured by growing boys and girls at a high rate of speed. Restaurant jelly is made of anything that happens to get in the way and is usually kept in the safe.

Jelly is also used to pad the human backbone. It is very useful in great political crises, and has enabled many a man to tell the handwagon from the hearse. The average political backbone is composed of nine parts jelly and one part sea foam, which give it its positive and fearless character.

H. Dougherty was given the minimum fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $7.50. Excution of the fine was withheld until tomorrow morning when Reynolds will report to the court. The complaint against Reynolds was for allowing manure to drip from his wagon while driving over North Washington street Saturday morning.

Janesville Gazette, Aug. 19, 1872.—O. Brooks is moving his building on River street and John Dewey will fix up a first class tobacco establishment in the old store at the end of the bridge. The premises are to be thoroughly repaired and remodeled.

The river was so low between the dams yesterday, that the bullheads and suckers were walking along on the sand with parols over their heads. There was scarcely any water visible.

Tomorrow is the day designated in the statutes as the beginning of the shooting season. Sportsmen will now have the privilege of chasing the wild quail chickens over the plain with dogs and guns and bringing home their hunting pouches well filled with gamey spoil. In this locality the law protecting those birds has not been strictly observed. Young chickens have been ruthlessly slaughtered and now that the hunting season is at hand there is not much of anything to hunt.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

I sat me down in a cozy nook, and mixed things up with a noble book, containing gems from the greater bards who in fame's temple have left their cards. Oh, in their lines were full of a throbbing fire, and the way they punished the golden lyre, the way they warbled on Music's peak would make a fellow rear up and shriek. But soon I tired of their scolding strains; such poems are hard on a fat man's brains when the sweat rolls down from his forehead phiz, and the hungry flies all around him whiz.

So I got a SONGS AND SINGERS book that was full of lays produced at speed by the jingling jays who print their rhymes in the daily press; and it does look bad, but

EGGING HIMSELF ON.
The city man with a poultry book
Now burns the midnight taper,
And figures out
How, sans all doubt,
He can get rich on paper.
Find another dresser.

I must confess that these modern verses refreshed my soul, weighed down by the great bard's rigmorale. For the soaring poet forever speaks of the ancient gods and the ancient Greeks, of knights in armor and misty kings, and myths and legends and hazy things. Ah, how much wiser the jingling jays, who writes of people on earth today, of things that happen in our own land, of men and measures we understand! Now bringing a smile from ear to ear, now dimming the eye with a briny tear, now taking a fall from a crying sham, now crooning a dirge or singing a psalm. There are no flies on the master poets, and I'm not anxious to get their goats; let them proceed on their stately way—we'll love both them and the jingling jays!

Gladys—The count says Edith is pure gold.
Jack—That means another gold shipment to Europe, I suppose.
Its Nature.
"Some people seem to regard local option with a tigerish rage."
"Yes—blind-tigerish."

Plant Secret.
An old and experienced florist taught me many valuable and useful things in regard to plants. One of his tricks was that whenever he transplanted any flower or plant he always sifted steel filings into the new soil before he put in the plant. He explained to me that the steel filings rusted when the soil was watered and that the rust made the plants grow rapidly. In the long time that I was associated with him I never knew this method of treatment to fail.

Turning the World Over.
When Archimedes hollered "Give me a lever and I will lift and turn the world over," he was only prophesying the coming powers of our Yankee style of advertising—that is making the whole world whirl round four or five times a day where it turned only once a year in old Chinese days.
